TOBOGGAN / USADGC HISTORY

Welcome to the 2023 PDGA United States Amateur Disc Golf Championship, presented by Discraft, makers of the world's finest flying discs. On Sunday, June 11, 2023, a new United States Amateur Disc Golf Champion will be crowned. We hope you will be here to witness this PDGA Major event!

The Kensington Toboggan Disc Golf Course was created for the Discraft PDGA Pro/Am World's in 2000. Course designer and Discraft owner Jim Kenner created an epic experience that people still talk about today. In 2002, the United States Amateur Disc Golf Championships (USADGC) moved onto the Toboggan and the course became the events home course. Every year since, the Toboggan has been the home for this PDGA Amateur Major. Todd White was the USADGC initial Tournament Director, and the first champion was Scott Burnett #20173, from Ohio.

Combined with the USADGC title sponsor Discraft, the entire staff including many members from the Professional Disc Golf Association (PDGA), the Michigan Disc Golf Organization (MDGO), and the amazing Kensington Metropark staff who are instrumental in installing this course, we hope you enjoy yourself watching some of the best amateur disc golf players in the world attempt to set records on the Toboggan Disc Golf Course.
